Vague as that sounded, the emphasis of the first day's meeting was definitely on a new social policy for the nine countries. European Image Sought

The main theme running through the nine opening declarations was the desire to develop a European image. Prime Minister Edward Heath, of Britain, making his first appearance at an REC summit meeting, said that alone, no European nation could hope to make its weight felt. "But we can find our place and make our voice heard if we work together, he said,

Mr. Heath called for Europe to "speak with a united voice" in coming international monetary negotiations, Tonight, a French kesman said the nine nations hed agreed to so that, although it was clear that they still have not agreed on what that united position is to be.

Relations with the United States were stressed in several opening declarations, with Mr. Brandt echoing President Nixon's call for "dynamizing" America's relations with the community. In West German eyes, this would be some sort of institutionalized At lentic body. While the French have disagreed with this institutionalized concept, President Georges Pompidou pointed out in his opening remarks that of the nine nations only one-Ireland-was not in the Atlantic Alliance and said that it would be "absurd" to think that Europe could be directed against the United States,

But he said that Europe although it should never cut itself off from the United States, should develop its personality. And he emphasized that this should first be done through economic and monetary union, He said that Europe was ready both for trade negotiations and monetary talks with the United States and that the monetary talks should lead to a return to dollar convertibility, a new reserve structure and controls against capital speculation. Mr. Pompidou said that France would avoid "theological discussions" on the price of gold, but that someday the subject would have to be

The one concrete piece of business the nine nations accomplished today was in fixing the dates

Nixon May Try Own Spending Curb

legislated a $250-billion spending

A few hours later, the Fresident's chief domestic adviser. John D. Ehrlichman, expanded on Mr. Shultr's comments. The President, he said, is considering a combination of vetoes of some bills plus impounding to hold spending down and avoid a tax rise. Mr. Ehrlichman said that he believed it was still possible avoid a tax increase but that Congress's rejection of the spending lid would make it more dif-

The Treasury secretary told a news conference that, although Congress would not approve the celling that Mr. Nixon wanted, the legislators' debate on the measure clearly endorsed the idea of spending restraint.

"I want to tell you," Mr. Shultz said, "that the President is not going to go along with the hig spending, tax-happy attitude that is so evident."

And underscoring the obvious intention of the Republican ad-ministration to hold the Democrats to blame for higher spending—and the consequent threat of higher taxes—he criticized Sen George McGovern, the Democratic presidential candidate, for voting "no" on the spending celling. Sen. McGovern, Mr. Shultz said. "voted for this tax-happy policy.". He said that President Nixon "is going to fight hard" to keep as close to the $250-billion figure as ha can. Mr. Shultz blamed Congress for making it hard for the edministration to avoid a tax riss because of its adjournment-rush action rejecting the spending ceil-ing and increasing spending.

Before Congress quit last night the House at 8:47 p.m. the Senate at 8:51 p.m.-Sen, Hubert H. Humphrey, D., Minn., in one of his most impassioned speeches since coming back to the Senate from the vice-presidency, argued that the Nixon-demand for a ceiling was a trick and a demonstration of political fakery.

Sen. Humphrey said that Mr. Nixon-in his proposals to cut business taxes last year, his revenue-sharing proposals which just passed, and his heavy requests for military speedingwas responsible to large measure for the deficit of more than $25 billion expected this year, and that now he was trying to blame the water pollution bill. The House Republican leader, Gerald Ford of Michigan, and Rep. William Harsha, R., Ohio, senior GOP member of the House Public Works Committee, as well as many other Republicans were among the 247 who voted to override the presidential veto.

Secretary Shultz said that Capitol Hill debate over the spending ceiling -although the legislators could not agree on how to impose it amounted to congressional acknowledge-endorsement and with the President's authority - which some legislators dispute - to impound appropriated funds, the Treasury may have the means by which to keep down spending. . The House, at Mr. Nixon's re-was serious enough to hold spend-ing to $250 billion. With that quest, originally had voted a $250-billion ceiling and permitted him, to cut any program ha wished in order to; stay under it. The Senate failed to go along.

Wants Change by 'Democratic' Way

Thieu Meets Kissinger, Again Bars Red Terms

By Thomas W. Lippman SAIGON, Oct. 19 (WP).—Pres-ident Nguyen Van Thieu reiter-ated today that South Vietnam will not accept the political terms demanded by the Communists for a negotiated settlement of the war and insisted that any change in the government would have to be approved by the people through democratic methods." Through a variety of official and unofficial channels, he also raised other obstacles that could delay a peace agreement. Among them was a renewed call for an international conference, with representatives from 10 Southeast Asian nations, to settle the region's future. As Mr. Thieu embarked on a new round of talks with White House adviser Henry Rissinger, he also continued his recent efforts to re-establish personal con-tact with other South Vietnamese leaders and to discourage speculation that a negotiated end to the war was imminent.

An Open Question

Whether all this added up to a genuine show of confidence or meant that Mr. Thieu is digging in against a peace agreement that would require his ouster is an open question.

Members of the National sembly who have talked to Mr. Thien in the past 24 hours said he expressed concern that the United States might reach a separate military compromise with North Vietnam, halting the bombing and mining in exchange for a release of prisoners of war, Mr. Thieu has expressed similar fears in the past, warning that any such arrangement could be "extremely hazardous" for South

Mr. Thieu met twice today with Mr. Kissinger and other leaders of the U.S. diplomatic and military team. In a long session this morning, the president was accompanied by Vice-President Tran Van Huong, Premier Tran Thien Khiem, Foreign Minister Tran Van Lezn, two of his special assistants, South Vietnam's ambassador to Washington and the chief Saigon negotiator at the Paris peace talks.

The American delegation consisted of Mr. Kissinger, Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, Gen. Creighton Abrams, who is Army chief of staff, and Deputy Assistant Secretary of State Wil-Ham Sullivan.

This evening, Mr. Thieu met for about 90 minutes with Mr. Kissinger and Mr. Bunker. No Details Given

As usual, U.S. officials provided no information about the substance of the talks. At the regular daily military briefing, bowever, Vu Khanh, the official government spokesman, read a statement saying the morning meeting was "aimed at reviewing the general situation and developments in the peace

Lavelle Case Aftermath

Laird Slates 5 Reforms For Control of Military

By William Beecher

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 INYT) .- Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird, insisting that the documented instances of unauthorized bombing of North Vietnam did not represent a collapse of civilian control of the military, outlined today a series of five steps that he said were aimed at "further strengthening" civilian authority. These moves, be declared, should prevent a recurrence of a situation similar to the one in which Air Force Gen. John D. Lavelle reportedly order-ed unauthorized raids against North Vietnam during the period from November, 1971, to April, 1972. False reports were filed on the circumstances of the engagements, with some being listed as "protective-reaction" strikes.

The general was subsequently removed from his post, reduced two grades and retired. In an informal meeting with newsmen at the Pentagon, Mr. Laird released copies of a letter to Sen. John C. Stennis, D. Miss., whose Senate Armed Services Committee conducted tensive hearings on the Lavelle case. Earlier this week, Sen. Stennis demanded to know how Mr. Laird intended to prevent a repetition of such unauthorized war activity.

Outline of Program The steps outlined by Mr. Laird were the following:

· Creation of a new group of inspectors general in a unified command headquarters, such as the Pacific command in Hawaii, to conduct regular probes of operational procedures to insure that orders from Washington are being scrupulously carried out. They will report to the defense secretary through the Joint Chiefs

UN Panel, Israel Trade Charges Over Arab Lands

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 19 (AP).—Israel exchanged accusations yesterday with a UN committee charged with investigating conditions of Arabs in Israel's occupied territories.

The Special Committee on the Occupied Lands said in a report that Israel follows a deliberate policy of annexing the territories it captured from Egypt, Syria and Jordan in the June 1967 war. Israel accused the committee of "political chicanery and calum-ny" and ignoring the true situation among the Arabs.

The committee, consisting of Bri Lanka (Ceylon), Somalia and Yugoslavia, said that Israeli policy included settling the territories in violation of the inhabitants' rights. The goal is the deliberate eradication of a distinct Palestinian identity," it

The report charged the Israelis established 43 settlements in the territories and displaced 11,000

In its reply, Israel said that "the inhabitants of the areas enjoy tranquility, prosperity and respect for human rights" unknown there before 1967.

Answering the charge that it refused to receive the committee or to cooperate with it, Israel said that since the nations on the committee maintain relations with the Arab bloc but not with the Jewish state, it would be impossible for Israel to receive a fair hearing from it.

Guerrilla sources said that Mr. Kayed opposed the understanding reached last month between the guerrilla movement as a worle and the Lebanese government to ward off further Israeli attacks on south Lebanon by freezing guerrilla activity there and pulling troops from the villages.

Reports from the Beka last night said that Mr. Kayed and several hundred armed followers had surrendered after being besieged by guerrilla forces loyal to the top el-Fatah leader, Yassir Arafat.

The diplomatic sources said that Mr. Kayed commanded "tangible support" among el-Fatah guerrillas. Before the dispute, he had been one of Mr. Arafat's senior aides, they said. After the fighting last week-end, el-Fatah issued a statement accusing him of rebelling after being dismissed from the organizetion for indiscipline. Meanwhile, Lebanese President Suleiman Franjleh today told the cabinet that the Israeli air raids over Lebanese territory last Sunday had opened a "new page" in

Israeli attacks. The president expressed the hope that world opinion would view "this new type of attack, which Israel admits is unjustified," without any bias and take

SANTIAGO, Oct. 19 (UPI).-A 23-year-old motorist, shot dead by a military patrol enforcing curfew, became the first fatality in Chile's nationwide series of strikes and disturbances, which entered its ninth day today. President Salvador Allende declared in a radio and television speech that professional organisations were guilty of "open sabotage" in the labor dispute dis-rupting Chile's commercial and industrial life.

Further, Mr. Laird said, a study is under way to determine whether changes should be made in the military retirement system. There has been considerable congressional criticism of peren a full general's pension, despite his demotion to major general. Further, he was granted a 70 percent disability even though he had been drawing flight pay until shortly before leaving active duty. This provides him with a pension of $27,000 a year, all but $2,900 of it tax free.

The defense secretary said that with the changes that are being taken, he was "confident that any deviation from operating authorities or felse reporting will ba promptly detected, and that, indeed, a recurrence of the type of incidents" brought out in the La-velle hearings "is highly unlikely." Mr. Laird attempted to draw distinction between failure in civilian and military control in that case. 'There were violations within the military command and control system in that commands within the military chain were violated and in that reports within the military chain of command were falsified," he said.

Pentagon officials exploined that if the Joint Chiefs of Staff or Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, who at the time was: Gen. Lavelle's superior, had colluded with him to violate orders not to bomb except after drawing enemy fire, which was called "protective reaction," that would have been considered a breakdown in civilian control. But since his military superiors were found to have been unaware of his unauthorized actions, the fallure was considered a military one, the Pentagon said.

News Analysis

White House's Strategy in Bugging Case

By Robert B. Semple Jr. WISHINGTON, Oct. 19 (NYT),-The essence of the administration's recent counterattack to charges that some of President Nixon's assistants created or at least condoned a network of political espionage and disruption has been to shrug off the charges and malign the news-papers that print them without explicitly discussing or denying Behind this strategy lie two confident assumptions that tell much about the administration's perceptions of the voters and the newspapers which serve them. Judging by recent interviews with Mr. Nixon's aides, these assump-tions seem to be widely shared in his inner circle.

The first is that the President himself has yet to be directly linked—and is not likely to be so linked—to any of the allegations of wrongdoing. At the moment, the White House feels, the alleged "conspiracy" is perceived by most of the public as a distant and even amateurish intrigua far removed from the Oval Office, and, thus, a denial or even discussion of the charges by the White House would give those charges undeserved visibility and

The second assumption is that the public—softened up by three years of speeches from Vice-President Agnew—has less than total confidence that what it reads and hears—particularly in the so-called Eastern or "establishment" media-is true and undistorted by political prejudice. Hence, the recent attacks on The Washington Post, which has been giving the story front-page treatment.

The techniques that flow from these assumptions were revealed Monday after suggestions in The Post—and assertions in Time indicated that the phone was

Mr. Nixon's appointments secre-tery, and Gordon Strachan, an to presidential assistant H R. Haldeman, had recruited Donald H. Segretti, a 31-year-old lawyer, o organize a campaign of disruption and distortion.

Both Ron Ziegler, the White House press secretary, and Clark MacGregor, the campaign director, described the allegations as "hearsay" and "guilt by association" and condemned The Pest as, in effect, a willing agent of the McGovern campaign. But neither man further discussed or flatly denied the allegations.

A variation on the technique occurred yesterday morning when Mr. Ziegler was asked about a New York Times story which said that Mr. Segretti had : ade telephone calls to an official named in the Watergate bugging case, to the White House and to Mr.

Mr. Ziegler treated The Times more gently than he had The Post but left the clear impression that he did not think much of the story. "I have no way of knowing how The Times received its information, or the accuracy of it," he said in part.

Denial Refused In addition, the press secretary White Eouse directed" activities involving "sabctage, spring, espionage," This sounded like the denial of a link between Mr. Chapin and Mr. Segretti that Mr. Ziegler had refused to furnish two days ago, but when news-men asked him on three separate occasions this morning whether he meant to deny flatly a Chapin-Segretti link, he refused to do so; indeed, at one point, he said he did not intend to go beyond 'my position which was offered to you the other day."

The object of all this inquiry

—Mr. Chapin himself—is known to and well liked by most newsmen covering the White Honse He is candid and friendly, and he is an obedient and loyal junior staff risn.

However, Mr. Chap n has chosen not to make himself available, Meanwhile, about 60 telephone answering all quesions with a 'no calls were made from Mr. Segretti's phone or with his credit card this spring and summer to comment." Repeated requests to senior White House aides to set forth the full story, as they see two young Floridians now serving it, have gone unanswered. This leaves the field to Mr. Ziegier, who appears increasingly uncom-fortable with questions about Mr. agers.
Twenty calls from March 5 to July 9 to the home telephone of Robert Benz of Tampa were Chapin and Mr. Segretti. charged to Mr. Segretti's home

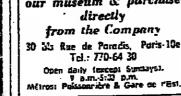

Principal Tactic At the moment, the White House spokesmen's principal tactic seems to be to create the impression. and have the public believe, that the charges of espionage are no more than stories printed in newspapers—and not very reilable newspapers at that.

"You know why we're not uptight about the press and the espionage business?" one White House aide—not Mr. Ziegler—asked rhistorically the other day.
"Because we believe that the public believes that the Eastern press really is what Agnew said it was-elitist, anti-Nixon and ultimately pro-McGovern."

The irony is that Mr. Agnew himse'f has adopted a low proff'e and is saying little about the press. But his allies in the White House freely admit that the seeds of surpicion he sowed in times past are bearing fruit today.

McGovern Cites Eisenhower To Condemn Nixon Spending

DETROIT, Oct. 19 (AP).—Sen. George McGovern said yesterday that former President Dwight D. Elsephower "must be stirring uneasily in his grave" because of President Nixon's military spend-

He said Mr. Nixon would leave the "bloated military budget" untouched and slash domestic programs to avoid increasing taxes. The Democratic presidential nomines recalled Gen. Elsenhower's warning, in a farewell address Jan. 17, 1961, that "we must guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence . . . by the military-industrial com-

Sen. McGovern spoke to the Detroit Economic Club. Just before leaving Detroit for Cleveland, he issued a statement saying the death of Mr. Nixon's request for a spending ceiling shows that "Congress has recognized that Mr. Nixon cannot be trusted with the power to allocate our carce resources among competing national needs." Ha also repeated his feeling that under the Constitution the President should not be given any of Congress' spending powers. Sen. McGovern cited Mr. Nix. on's eleventh-hour veto late Tuesday of a $24.6-billion bill to clean up America's waterways as evidence that the President would misuse any authority to cut spending.

In his view cleaning up the environment must wait, while the money goes first to Gen. Thieu, to added military overkill and to tax breaks for the rich," Sen. Mc-Govern said.

Congress overrode the veto yes-terday, brushing aside Mr. Nixon's contention that it would wreck the federal budget.

Elsewhere in the campaign, Sargent Shriver said that whether or not he and Sen. McGovern win the election, the effort will have been well worth it if it succeeds in forcing President Nixon to accept peace terms now.

"Maybe our campaign can force him to the peace table and that will be a great triumph." the vicepresidential candidate told a news conference.

Mr. Shriver spent most of yesterday touring New York City and attacking the future purposes and the present methods of Mr. Nixon and his administration. Later he went to Chicago. Eleanor McGovern canceled a campaign trip with her husband last night and made plans to return to Washington today. Aides said she was fatigued and suffer-

Police Lieutenant Suspended in N.Y. For Mafia Links

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (AP).— Police Lt. Meyer Rubenstein, 58, a veteran of 33 years on the force, was suspended last night and charged with "actively associating with persons engaged in un-lawful activities," Deputy Police Commissioner William McCarthy

Lt. Rubenstein was caught in the web spun by police surveillance of a trailer in a Brooklyn junkyard said to have been used as a headquarters by New York's five Mafia families

The departmental charges against the lieutenant said that his association with gangland figures took place there, Mr. Mc-Carthy said.

The five-count charge said that Lt. Rubenstein "revealed confidential information of the department; discussed various illegal pay-offs; had knowledge of illegal pay-offs and failed to take proper police ection and on various dates and while on sick report did go to" the junkyard, called the Bargain Auto Co.

The lieutenant reportedly had tipped off mob figures that their phones were tapped.

He applied for retirement Tuesday, the day after Brooklyn District Attorney Eugene Gold said that, based on information gathered at the Bargain Anto Co., 577 subpoenas had been issued and that the first indictments were expected to be handed up within 10 days.

In the case of Lt. Rubenstein Mr. McCarthy said that the "department will act expeditiously." He told a news conference that Lt. Rubenstein will be under department discipline until next

U.S. Will Drop Bar to Syrian Diplomat at UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 19 (UPI).—The United States will reissue a visa to a Syrian diplomat it previously declared persona non grete, diplomatic sources said yesterday. The diplomat is Dia-Allah el-

However, in the agreement under which the United Netione was located in New York, the United Stetes is obliged to provide "free access" to the world beadquarters for accredited diplomats. It may, however, demand the recall of diplomats whose activities are considered unecceptable.

Diplomatic sources said that, in similar previous instances, the governments of offending diplomats quietly have egreed to the person's removal. But Syria insisted that Mr. e'-Fettal was entitled to renewal of his visa, the sources said.

The sources said that the United States had evidence that Mr. el-Fattal was active in Illegal recruitment for the Palestinian Arab guerrillas in the United

Ulster Protestant Leader Sees Civil War About to Erupt

He said that he and his supporters—representing diehard loyalists among the province's Protestant community-would "shoot and kill" to preserve Northern Treland's British heritage.

Mr. Craig, former home affairs minister in the provincial government, told a meeting of British right-wing Conservatives that Prime Minister Edward Heath's administration had "betrayed" Northern Ireland when it took over direct rule there last March.
"We are going to war in Ulster," he said. "I can tell you without boasting I can mobilize tomorrow figures, on every level, can often win points It is ironical that Mr. Nixon, who first ran for the presidency against a candidate who proposed to substitute a strong man in the White House for the "weak" General Eisenhower and who had to face charges by the supporters of John F. Kennedy that the Eisenhower administration had sacrificed national security to budgetary considerations (the "missile gap") is now on the other side of the argument. His attempt to get anthority from Congress for almost complete control of the use of appropriations by a limit on overall expenditure was, to say the least, a striking expression of the "strong presidency" theory. And he is accused of sacrificing budgetary considerations (or at least the domestic portions of it) to security.

In any case, the closing maneuvers of this Congress provide support for Ralph Nader's assertions that Congress needs reform-not becaose it did not stand up to the President, but because it could oppose no consistent or workable policy to that of Mr. Nixon. It asserted authority, to be sure, but chiefly by spending more money. That is a very easy way to establish identity, when someone else causes as the fight against water poliution. does the paying.

The Paris summit thus should be the most exhilarating experience for the participants since the launching of the Common Market 14 years ago. In fact it will fall short of providing that kind of emotional uplift, either for the statesmen in Paris or for all the others who have been dedicated since World War II to the idea and ideal of a united. democratic Western Europe.

For a time last summer, President Pomptdon threatened to cancel the summit meeting he had originally sponsored, partly in pique at the refusal of France's partners to locate a political secretariat for the community in Paris instead of Brussels. But he is not the only participant to warn against the expectation of dramatic advances from the Paris meeting. The accepted theme is that this is a time for consolidation rather than innovation.

Thus the Dutch probably will get no more than a general long-term commitment to their proposal for expansion of the responsibilities of the European Parliament and direct election of its members, even though these advances are provided for in the origi-will push for implementation of a community -which would be used to maintain exchange rates of members within narrow limits. This conflicts with American proposals for more flexible exchange rates and may be delayed by community members anxious to avoid any action that might increase the protectionist and isolationist sentiment in this country.

"And yet, it moves!" Despite the pursuit of narrow objectives by member states, procrastination of even the limited surrenders of sovereignty scheduled in the basic treaty, and inexcusable delays on erecting democratic controls over its machinery, the European community is prospering. The retiring American ambassador to the community, J. Robert Schaetzel, correctly perceives "an inertial force which moves Europe on."

Even the myriad nuts and bolts required to adjust the machinery to a nine-nation community will expand the area of integration. From next January, to take one example, the community will negotiate as an entity on any trade treaties with outside countries. Moreover, the accession of Britain in particular will make inexorably for a more outward - looking freer-trading community. concerned with more than its own parochial

What the community needs is obvious. It needs institutions, subject to democratic controls to administer and eventually to shape those policies which member states are willing to assign to supranational anthority. And it badly needs a revival of the spirit that motivated such postwar glants as Monnet and Schuman of France. De Gasperi and Sforza of Italy, Belgium's Spaak and West Germany's Adenauer not only to conceive the dream but to chart the course for a united Europe.

If the statesmen in Paris this week could agree on some of the institutions they might find they had also sparked a revival of the

India and Nagaland

New Delhi's military incursions in Nagaland! have resulted in the killing, wounding and rendering homeless of several hundred thousand people; but they have not produced a political settlement to which the Nagas as a whole have consented. If the Indian government thinks its actions in Nagaland are not being properly and fairly reported, it should abandon the highly suspect policy of refusing to allow any newspaper correspondents...other than Indian citizens—to go beyond the Naga capital of Kohima. So long as the Indian government clings to this ban, they have no right to complain of the way events in Nagaland are reported abroad. It is surely time that Mrs. Indira Gandhi face the implications of extending her admirable policy of "open government" to the Naga hills.

CHICAGO.—The death is amounced here today of George M. Pullmao, president of the Pullman Palace Car Company, who expired suddenly from heart disease. George M. Pullman was the inventor of the modern luxurious parlor cars and comfortable sleeping cars so much used in America. In the first one constructed, the body of President Lincoln was carried on the funeral train after his assassination. Mr. Pullman was 66 years old. The empire he started will continue.

LONDON.-Premier Lloyd George has resigned. Late this afternoon the Welsh schoolma son, the country lawyer, the batter of dukes and privilege, the political magiciao who has ruled the greatest Empire in the world's history in the hours of its greatest travail and in the hours of its greatest glory, tendered the seals of office to the Sovereign at Buckingham Palace. The seals will not be turned over until there is a successor, probably Mr. Bonar Law.

SAIGON .- For the past few years everyone has talked about peace. In recent months more and more talk has been heard. about peace, about one solution or another, about the coming cesse-fire and so forth.

I would like to reiterate that our South itself hopes that peace will soon come more than anyons else and that we ourselves have worked harder and gone farther than anyone else.

On the other hand, the Communists yell for peace louder than anyone else but they are more stubborn and treacherous than anvone else

We are not afraid of a ceasefire, nor do we evade it. We ourselves hope that a cease-fire will soon come so that peace will be restored quickly. We have also demanded many times talks on an immediate cease-fire. Mean-while, it is the Communists who are more afraid of a cease-fire than anyone else.

They arrived in Paris four years and more ago not to negotiste peace seriously with a peaceful will but to save the North from bombings pending a complete U.S. troop withdrawal and to prepare adequate means, swaiting the most fevorable moment, in the hope that they can defeat the Republic of Vietnam by force,

In the post four years and more, the Communists have refused to negotiate peace seriously because they had at their disposal 15 infantry divisions, from five to seven artillery and anti-atroraft divisions together with 1,000 tanks waiting to come South to stage the last battle in 1972.

Public Opinion

In recent months the Communists have run up and down from Hanoi to Paris, the U.S.S.R. and Red China and have made con-tacts with the United States time and again, acting as if they truly with one solution or another. But in reality, they merely aimed at exploiting the U.S. voters' publie opinion, separating the people from the U.S. government, separating the United States from ourselves, and at the same time once again deceiving world public opinion. In fact, no words, gestures or acts on their part have indi-cated that they had any goodwill in the past four years and more On the contrary, troops, weapons and ammunition have been continuously sent from the North to the South, Laos and Cambodia to prolong the war of aggression. Today the Republic of Vietnam once again confirms:

In a solution for the war in Vietnam, North Vietnam is the aggressor from the outside; naturally it will not be allowed to enjoy anything or any right in the South; on the contrary, it has the duty to end all acts of aggression in the South and withdraw all of its tools of aggression to the North. Moreover, the North must compensate the southern people for all the damages and mourning caused to them by their infiltration during the past eighteen

In a solution to the war in all of Indochina. North Vietnam also bears a similar responsibility toward the Khmer Republic and

In everything concerning the Republic of Vietnam, the Khmer Republic and Laos, North Vietnam must respect these three Indochinese countries' territory, sovereignty, independence, freedom and peace. First of all, it must not interfere in or stir up domestic political affairs in any of them. In the South a political solution is a domestic affair of the South. It is a right and responsibility of the southern people to settle it among themselves. No one is allowed to interfere.

The South Visinamese people now have a unique, constitutional, legal government. Every domestic political solution and problem of the South must be approved by the present constitutional, legal Republic of Vietnam government and by the South Vietnamese

Therefore, only the present Republic of Vistnam government is competent to discuss and approve any domestic political solution for the South and no one has the right to do it in its place. The Republic of Vietnam government and the northern administration would discuss only what concerns the two parts.

This national right to selfdetermination must be seriously implemented through democratic procedures that really respect the people's absolute freedom of choics and determination and time spirit defense struggle and then at annexing our country and then all of Southeast Asia.

Besides the direct participation of all components of the South Vietnamese people, broad international control or observation is very necessary to certify and insure freedom, democracy and fairness to any of these procedures. mentioned principles. No prefabricated mechanism, in any form whatsoever, can be im-posed to force the Republic of Victosm government and people to accept such a mechanism The points which I have presented and which are related to the restoration of peace and the settlement of the internal political problem in South Vistnam are also the basic principles for a peace solution which we have sought and are seeking and which we expect to come soon to us. The peace which we have sought and are seeking is a peace based on the reason and honor of everyone and for everyone. This peace also bears a special Vietnamese characteristic which is national love and coocord and the elimination of hatred, and the great national unity among the Vietnamese people themselves

Politically, on Republic of Vietnam territory we advocate a policy of reconciliation so that people from the other side of the front line can participate in a pesceful manner and without the use of military strength or violence in the common activities of the nation on the basis of the right of self-determination, according genuinely free and democratic

Our proposals have become more and more open-minded. broadened, and sensible and ressonable. We have made maximum concessions based on the right of self-determination and the spirit of national reconciliation.

Meanwhile, the Communists have become more and more deceitful and stubborn through their increasing unreasonable and insolent proposals. They want to eliminate that which belongs to and is established by the South Vietnamese people in order to impose a Communist regime disguised under the form of a coaliion government.

If the Communists really have goodwill for peace as they have frequently ballyhooed, let them end all their deceitful political maneuvers and hold serious talks with the Republic of Vietnam government to discuss the procedures to end the war on the basis of the South Vietnamese people's right to self-determination as they have constantly advocated and demanded that it be realized

nists have brazenly violated the neutrality of Laos and Cambodia and trampled on the Geneva agreements which they signed to invade the Republic of Vietnam. In their aggression in Indochina they have enjoyed the important aid of Communist countries, especially the USSR, and Communist Chine. Meanwhile, they have shouted for the "neutralization" of South Vietnam. So. objective people note that while speaking of the "neutralization" of South Vietnam, the Communists and pro-Communists actually want to use that apparently attractive label to promote a oneway solution and to exert pressure to demand that our allied armed forces be not present in this country and refrain from exercising the public right to self-defense.

For this reason, I resolutely oppose Communist-style neutrality because this is a malicious Communist plot aimed at paralyzing and isolating us in our self-

In the present situation, I think that it is time to convene a conference involving all the 10 Southeast Asian countries, including North Vietnam. North Vietnam should participate in this conference if it has a sincere desire for peace. This is necessary for it to display its muchheraided goodwill for peace. The proposed conference is designed to find appropriate procedures for establishing a lasting peace for this area and laying a foundation for and establishing economic and cultural relations among the na-tions in the area. The proposed conference is also designed to lay a basis for the relationship between the countries in the area and the big foreign powers on the basis of these principles.

If the proposal for such an all-Southeast Asia conference is responded to, we will be glad to invite Southeast Asian countries to come and meet in the Republic of Vietnam capital or we will be ready to participate in that con-ference in any other place chosen by the majority of the Southeast Asian countries.

No one understands the Communists more clearly than we do, and no one has more or as many sorrowful experiences with the Communists than we do. No one will bear the responsibility and admit the fault before our national history and children and grandchildren for us, if this country is lost. President Nguyen Vak Thieu of South Vistnam addressed the National Assembly in Saigen carlier this month. This article is excerpted from that speech.

For a 'New Europe'

The Semicolon Summ

By C. L. Sulzberger

PARIS.—In e symbolic sense this week's meeting of the nine government chiefs of "Europe"-meaning the enlarged Common Market-should represent a punctuation mark in contemporary progress. Perhaps it might serve as a semicolon in the sentence that began with the 1957 Treaty of Rome, banding together the community's first six embers, and leading into an unknown future.

Arnold Toynbee, the historian, who has a gift for the apt phrase, observes: "Western Europe has at last been united on a Napoleonic scale, not through conquest this time, but voluntarily." That is a dramatic way of stating things but as French President Pompidou forecast at a recent press conference, the sum-mit conference that takes place Timrsday and Friday is unlikely to be a turning point, even in European history.

As an economic association seeking to better organize the industrial commercial fiscal and farming talents of its members. the market had already demonstrated success, even before admitting three new members. Indeed, it was this demonstration that induced Britain to abandon its treditionally insuler policy and join,

The Opportunity

Prime Minister Heath, who championed Britain's admission, boasts with reason: "Europe recognizes that we are after all going to be the largest end the powerful trading bloc the world has ever known and that gives us enormous opportunity." But it is obvious this "opportamity" will not be seized at the first meeting of the nine. Even on the order of priorities, there are major differences among the market's big three.

Chancellor Brandt faces an election Nov. 19 and would like to be able to advertise national successes to the West German voters. The party of Pompidou, host at this summit, is almost certain to face the electorate next year. When the world's two foremost "progressive" states mete out capital punishment for such relatively trivial offenses, and such a "spiritually" advanced outpost as India still believes in the old "barbaric" eye for an eye, then where, maybe one of your readers can tell us, does that leave the United States with villains on the scale of Manson and his crew still enjoying the light of day? I was not present at the sad debacle of the "Norms" opening at the Paris Opéra. But I thought of those who were. Watch Your Step

I was pleased to read R.N. Buck's remarks (letters, Oct. 12) commenting on the dog-soiled Paris streets. But this airline pilot might also peer down one day on approach at Orly in his 747 and think of us little "prop" set pilote souffling along at 1,000 feet through the smoe (purée de petits pois (pea soup), which, around Paris, sometimes becomes frighteningly dark and thick. I've given up expecting my hometown of Los Angeles ever to solve its dirty air problem, but London seems to have done it pretty well. so why not Paris where the probtems are similar?

In fact, I was thinking the other day, as I strolled zig-zagging through the dog-do, that the Paris skyline will never be ruined by towers, since you can't see them anyway. Either the smog hides it or you're too busy watching where you step.

Hot Taxes

The protest (Letters, Oct. 11) of the use of taxpayers' money to install a new furnace in one of President Nixon's own houses suggests to me the writer doesn't under-stand 1972 Republican morality. If he thinks Nixon should pay for his own furnace to protect his health simply because he receives a huge ary, owns two palatial estates and is worth more than a halfmillion dollars, then what does he think taxpayers are for? WILLIAM H. WENNEMAN.

On Pompidou

President Pompidou's views on the current urban development/destruction of Paris in-indicate either naiveté or circumlocation of the hard-nosed economic determinants. Skyscrapers are first and foremost a means for multiplying floor space in high-land-value areas; hence, providing a larger rent to the developer and perpetuating the ever increasing spiral of urban land values, Midtown New York is of course the extreme example of this process. Because Paris is nowhere near this state, there is all the more reason for applying great caution and selectivity in choosing appropriate sites for these buildings.

A few days later it was learned that the museum planned to ex-change with the Mariborough Amadeo Modigliani's "Russian Woman" and Juan Gris's "Le Gueridon" for works by David Smith and Clyfford Still Mr. Hoving also confirmed that several hundred other art items would be put up for sale as the museum sought to "weed out" works of "secondary importance" and upgrade the quality of its collection through new purchases and exchanges.

The disclosures have resulted in strong criticism of Mr. Hoving and the museum from critics, artists and the Art Dealers Association of America, an organization of 85 of the nation's leading art dealers, which called the sales a "breach of public trust." In their letter to the museum's trustees, the faculty members said that such sales often resulted in the return of important works to private hands, or their permanent departure from country.

"Art now held in public trust by the museum must not be sold without consideration for the needs of scholars and students, well as the public at large," the art historians said. The saga is utterly convincing despite its extravagant and lurid coloring. The opening sets the tone. The ruling chieftain, the godfather of the title, is visited hy an trate father. The glastly, the bizarre and the comical mingle in the well-balanced script. There is the case of the fading crooner, a protégé of the godfather, who hopes to stage a comeback via a movie role. The studio boss, resentful of the singer's cavalier conduct with a starlet, refuses to employ him The Hollywood magnifico is visited by an emissary of the godfather, but he stands his ground in the face of threats of union troubles. The next morning the movie mogul awakes to discover his bed flooded with blood, While he slumbered the severed head of his blue-ribbon racehorse has heen deposited between the sheets. The crooner is engaged for the part, shake-up rather than shake-down methods having accomplished their objective. In another episode, one of the godfather's sons, reluctant to enter the family concern, is beaten by a police captain who is on the payroll of a rival gang. Later, ostensibly to settle differences hetween the two groups, the son, Michael, agrees to dine with the policeman and the Inval leader in an Italian restaurant. Michael is frisked but unknown to the others, a revolver has been placed behind the tollet water tank in the men's room. Michael asks permission to go to the toilet, gets the gun and kills the rivals. That night he flees to Sicfly.

to murder the beguiling bride The ending, a trifle cynical reveals Michael's coming to power on his father's demise, the godfather, ever a family man, expiring peacefully as he romps with a grandchild.

There have been complaints that the film glorifles criminals, but I fall to find this. Rather it presents them honestly and persuasively. None of them is bathed in an admiring light, and the criticism is of social conditions which permit them to thrive All of the acting is excellent.

Marlon Brando as the softspoken, quick-thinking patriarch of gangland avoids the pitfalls of character acting in a strong portrayal of the aged ruler. Al Pacino as the son, gingerly following in his father's footsteps at first and then blossoming forth at the finish as a full-fledged underworld commander, proves the most promising of recent American screen finds. Robert Duvall as the godfather's legal adviser and Sterling Hayden as the bought police chief stand out, but there is not a poor performance in the large company. Each player, down to the bit roles, succeeds in making an effective im-

A 12 km de Parie, tous les chemins mènent à Sarcelles et la zone industrielle bénéficie ainsi du réseau de communications le plue moderne et le plus diversifié de toule la région parisienne : autoroute A1 et blentôt A 16, deux routes nationales (RN 1 et 16), deux votes de chemin de lar, un et très bientôt deux aéroports. Il'est difficile de faire mieux à 20 minutes de Paris!

 II -- Sarcelles a un équipement complet.
 Les 68 ha de le zons industrislié de Sarcelles sont entièrement viabilisés et divisés en lots de suriaces (de 2.000 à 40,000 m2). Toutes les entreprises non classées ou classées en 2ème et 3èms catégories peuvent e'y installer. Nous avons tout de suite trouvé le terrain que nous cherchions.

 Sarcelles est une vrale villa. Et, comme toute vraie ville, Sarcelles est dotée de tous les équipements sociaux, scolaires, commerciaux, administratifs, culturels et sportifs, nécessaires à le vie quotidienne de ses 55,000 habitants. C'est plus qu'appréciable !

IV - Sarcelles dispose d'une importante population active.

30.000 personnes ectives habitent Sarcelles. Toutes les catégories socio-professionnelles y sont représentées. Ce qui explique que nous avons aisément trouvé sur place le personnel qui nous faisait défaut.

V - Sarcelles est vraiment très abordeble. Si proche de Paris et avec tous ses avantages, la Zone industrielle offre, en plus, le m2 le plus compétitif (prix moyen 100 F) et la redevance au taux le plus réduit (25 F le m2) de toute la région paristenne. Il n'y e ni taxe locale d'équipement ni taxe sur les transports. Oui, mon Directeur e au raison.

Sapan-Built Ships May Have Defect

TOKYO. Oct. 19 (Reuters),-The Transport Ministry today warned that 35 Japanese-built thips now in service with foreign companies may have defects in heir welding work-although not erious enough to affect their rafety. A spokesman said the ministry and ordered two major shipbuildrs—Ishikawajima-Harima Heavy ndustries and Kawasaki Heavy industries—to be more careful iter small cracks were discoverd on six Japanese-owned large and Japanese investors given access to foreign mutual funds by early next year. In a speech at a meeting of the American Chamber of Com-merce of Japan, Mr. Segawa said Japanese corporations were raising $3 billion in equities and another $3 billion in bonds annually. "In the case of foreign corperations, it is felt that roughly 20 to 30 percent of this amount could be enjoyed, or roughly $1 billion to $2 billion in terms of money involved," he said.

"This cannot be realized over-night," but "the Tokyo canital market has enough potential to meet the demand to such an extent," Mr. Segawa added,

Japanese individual investors had purchased about $100 million of foreign securities since they were permitted to do so a year ago, while Japanese instiinvestors had bought about $400 million from foreign stock markets, Mr. Segawa noted. Mr. Segawa said preparations are being made to enable foreign corporations to fully enjoy the capital raising function of the Tokyo market by helping them issue equities and bonds here and increasing Japanese investments in foreign equities. Problems' concerning the listing of foreign stocks and bonds here, such as disclosure requirements, the form of share certificates and the traditional Japanese principle of secured bonds, would also be settled by the beginning of next year, he point of view of everting revelua-tion: Reports circulated that the government had decided once again to postpone a "final decision" on a new yen defense pro-gram, this time to next Tuesday rather than taking action:

Other disturbing developments included a report from Washington which quoted U.S. Under Secretary of State U. Alexis Johnson as telling Japanese For-eign Minister Nasayoshi Ohira that if the U.S.-Japan trade imbalance continues, it will become 'a grave issue of the 1970s."

At the same time that Mr. Ohira was being warned, Theodorus Hijzen, acting director-seneral for external trade of the was making the rounds of various Japanese ministries in Tokyo quietly urging that Japan take steps to assure that its trade surplus with Europe will not be allowed to swell to an unmanageable level.

Meanwhile, Tadashi Sasaki, governor of the Bank of Japan, sounded another alarm about in-flation and hinted that he would not hesitate to adapt monetary policy to domestic considerations at the expense of halance of payments considerations if price increases seem to be getting out of hand

Jobless Rate Drops in U.K.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—The number of jobless in Britain fell in mid-October to the lowest monthly total this year except for June, the government reported today.
Unemployment totaled 844,840, down 78,954 from September, the Department of Employment said. This was equivalent to an unemployment rate of 3.6 percent, down from 3.9 percent in Sep-

The figures included those for Northern Ireland, where mem-playment dropped 4,900 to 38,002, or 7.3 percent of the work force, Employment Secretary Maurice MacMillan said. "It shows that the government's efforts to get the economy moving and to reduce the unacceptably high level of unemployment are working."

At the same time the number of vacancies waiting to be filled increased by 7,218 to 212,510. Hoth figures, the government pointed out, went against normal easonal trends. Mr. MacMillan said, "I think these figures show we are on the course. But if we are to

With the Bank of England offering only limited resistance, sterling fell as low as $2.39, its lowest level since the govern-ment floated the pound in June, but recovered a bit later. Dealers said sterling was help-ed by a denial from the Treasury that the pound would be repegged to a fixed rate in the near future, and dismissed as without foundation reports that the new rate, when fixed, would be below

(There was also speculation in Europe that British Prime Minister Edward Heath would use the current Common Merket summit meeting in Paris as the occasion to fix a new parity rate for the pound. A British spokesman qualified the speculation as "rubbish."]

Dealers attributed the weakness to the mounting pressure from wide sectors of industry for higher pay which threatens to wreck the government's efforts to get a voluntary prices and incomes policy that will hold down infla-

'Real' U.S. GNP Growth Slows

By Peter Milius

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (WP). -The U.S. economy grew from July through September at a pace that was faster than normal, but a slowdown from the rates of the nine months before. The rate of inflation, while slightly higher than it was from April through June, remained well under the averages of any of the past three years, the Com-merce Department said today.

The report card on the economy was contained in the department's preliminary summing-up of the gross national product for the third quarter the market value of all goods and services that all Americans produced and

The department said that the GNP rose at an annual rate of $22.8 billion, or 8.3 percent, in the third quarter, to a seasonally-adjusted level of $1,162.2 billion. About three-fourths of that growth was "real," an actual increase in output. The rest reflected an increase in prices. The department said that the real growth rate was 5.9 percent, and the "implicit" rate of inflation for the quarter, 22 percent. The real growth was a slow-down from the 6.7, 8.5 and 9.4 percent of the three preceding quar-ters. It was higher, bowever, the long-term average growth rate of a little over 4 percent a year.

That is normal in recoveries. The growth rate was only 2.7 percent, well under the long-term average, in both 1969 and 1971. The economy actually shrunk by 0.5 percent in real terms in 1970, the bottom of the last recession.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (NYT) .-Bausch & Lomb, a glamour favorite on Wall Street earlier this year, plummeted 81/4 to 283/8 as the most active issue on the New York Stock Exchange today. This dramatized the overriding importance of earnings in a market that posted a modest overall decline.

As a rule of thumb, many stocks with profit gains produc-ed higher prices. But lower or disappointing earnings took a number of stocks downward, The Dow Jones industrials eas-

Trading in Stock NEW YORK, Oct. 19 (NYT).— The Midwest Stock Exchange is investigating trading over the last week in shares of Continental Illinois Corp., parent company of Chicago's largest bank, ex-change officials said yesterday. The inquiry is focusing on the possibility of an advance leak of inside information concerning Continental's third-quarter earnings. On Tuesday, it disclosed that its operating earnings drop-ped 7.85 percent, in sharp contrast to widespread expectations among security analysts of an increase of about the same amount. On Friday of last week and Monday of this week, Continental's shares dropped almost 10 points in heavy trading to 57 5/8. John H. Perkins, Continental vice-chairman said that he was confident that there had not been any leak of inside information. He pointed out that the shares of all major banking concerns were under pressure late last week due to the statement by Arthur P. Burns, who voiced "concern" about recent increases in the prime lending rates of the major banks

BRIDGE

By Alan Truscott

Some of the European governments take an enlightened attitude toward organized bridge. In Sweden, for example, where a high school student can take two hours of bridge weekly as part of his curriculum, the game receives an annual grant of some $60,000.

In Holland, bridge is listed as a "hrain sport," and claims a share of the funds distributed to all branches of sport from the proceeds of the Dutch football pools. This financing no dooht helped the Dutch to organize the recent European Junior Championships in Delft. Seventeen countries sent teams whose members were under the age of 27, giving their young stars a taste of international experience that their American counterparts lack.

The six leading countries, in order, were Poland, Israel, France, Denmark, Hungary and Britain, Britain gained points against Israel by aggressive bidding on the diagramed deal from the Junior Champienships. In the auction shown, the Israeli East-West were using the Roman system in which two spades promises an opening bid with at least five spades and at least four clubs. This enabled West to bid five clobs when South made a gambling jump to four hearts. North was unwilling to give up on a vulnerable game and he tried five hearts. East made a dubious double. The British South, Ceri Evans of London, won the first trick in dummy. He had to resign himself to the loss of a club trick as well as a heart trick. But how to play the red suits for only one loser was the problem.

The bidding and the opening lead combined to give South a good picture of East's hand; five spades, four clubs, the diamond king and one of the heart honors. If East held a doubleton in each red suit, it was necessary to lead each red suit once from the Leading a heart first offered no chance, so South led the diamond seven from dummy. This woo the trick, and he then led a heart for a finesse. West took the heart queen and shifted to a spade. South was able to ruff East's ace and make the contract when the red kings came plopping down under the aces.

DENNIS THE MENACE

anthors read as if they were revolutions apart, Mr. Lester's "Two Love Stories" are gentle, sentimental, skin-deep, humorold-fashioned. Miss Bambara's 15 stories in "Gorills, My Love" are tough, vio-lent, funny and frantically relevant." Anyone who felt that black writing might be moving toward some kind of conformity would find little evidence of it

"Baskethell Game." the first of Mr. Lester's two novellas, is as stiffly posed and anachronistic as something out of an old family album or diary found in an attic, Even in their time and place, these pictures, these sen-timents, can hardly have been vivid or moving. Though there is no reason a black author should not get down off the barricades if he wants to, it is difficult to understand why Mr. Lester should have wished to walk these featureless streets.

In this story, a black 14-yearold boy and his family move to an all-white neighborhood in Nashville. When Allen, the boy, plays basketball in his driveway, a white girl his age comes out from the house next door and asks to play with him. They begin to play regularly, but he so alraid of bodily contact with her that he always stands by and lets her outscore him.

Everybody, black and white, warns him sgainst this peculiar friendship, but Allen insists that it is innocent. It might well be, for the author asks us to believe that, at 14, Allen hasn't even a visual or conceptual notion of what a female sexual organ is like. This, in face of the fact that his friends are the sort who do not hesitete to copulate with their girls in bis presence. After some 70-odd pages of build-up, if we can call it that the girl moves to another neighborhood, but not before vowing eternal friendship. Months later, Allen runs into her in a department store. She is with another, white girl and cuts him dead—whereupon he goes home, pulls down the basketball hoop and cries on the shoulder of his I-told-you-so father.

The second novella, "Catskill Morning," is even sticker. In this one, Mr. Lester has crossed the "color line" of the first story write about two of the "whitest" young people to be found in recent fiction. The girl is 16, a talented ballet dancer, infected to her fingertips with a fairy-tale fondness for dramatizing herself. The boy, a bit older, is a nature counselor in the camp she has been sent to hile her parents are in Europe Though he feels that there is nothing so satisfying as being alone on a mountain and her beart belongs to ballet, they manage somehow to fall in love. When they fall out again, they stage a scene that would make Hollywood's most commercial producer blush.

Screaming Crowd Hinders A's From Cutting Down Red Run

OAKLAND, Oct. 19 (UPI) -"You've got to have vision all over the place to see both runners and still watch that throw coming in from the outfield," said A's manager Dick Williams, trying to explain the play in the seventh timing of last night's World Series game in which Cincinnati scored the game's only

Williams said the crowd was too noisy for any of his infielders to hear his shouts, or those of Oakland catcher Gene Tenace, that baserunner Tony Perez had stumbled rounding third and might be nailed at home on a

Instead, shortstop Bert Campaneris took the throw from centerfielder George Hendrick and turned toward Cesar Geronimo, who had just rounded first after singling with Perez on second.

Individual Pro Football Leaders

"I hear nothing. I wetch the throw and Gerouimo," said Campaneris

"I was hollering for the ball but nobody heard me," said Tenace. "The infielders were looking et the ball coming back from the outfield and the runner rounding first. They never knew Perez had tripped.

"If the play was made quickly, I think we could have had him." Williams said the ball hit by Geronimo wasn't hit well and was slowed by the soggy grass in the. outfield.

"I don't fault Hendrick at all," said Williams. "The ground was awfully wet and the ball slanted down and stayed there. We all yelled but we had to compete with more than 49,000 people. "And unless the relay from Campaneris was perfect, Perez probably could still have scored."

Then, in the first balf of the seventh, having just escaped Oakland's strongest threat of the game, the Reds pieced together their run and their victory. They started with a leadoff single to left field by Perez and a sacrifice bunt by Menke that moved Perez to second base. Geronimo, who also figured in the Cincinnati-Houston deal, followed with a single to center and Perez headed for third.

The A's might have lucked out because Perez lost his footing in the wet grass after rounding third and sell down halfway between the bag and home.

But the Oakland center fielder, Georga Hendrick, was still relaying the ball into the infield and nobody on the Oakland team ap-parently noticed Peres's quandary as he scrambled to his feet in time to make it home.

In the eighth, the Reds almost padded their lead at the expense of Vida Blue, who relieved Odom but pitched to only three batters. The first, Pete Rose, hit a mean line drive toward second base that Ted Kubiak speared in a dive. The second, Joe Morgan, drew a walk and the third, Bob Tolan, singled through the mid-

With a count of three balls and two strikes, Williams went to the mound, talked things over and then left. His catcher, Tenace, then held his right arm out in the customary signal for an intentional walk. But as Bench resaxed slightly at the plate, Fingers whipped a hard slider over the outside corner for a sneaky strike three.

The inning ended when Menke fouled out, leaving Cincinnati with red faces but still with a one-run lead.

Carroll to Rescue

Billingham protected the lead easily in the home half of the eighth, retiring the A's on three infield grounders. But in the last half of the ninth, he started by throwing three balls to Mike Epstein and was replaced by Carroll, the "hawk" of the bullpen set a major-league record this summer with 37 saves in 65 appearances.

.Carroll didn't let the ball get out of the infield, either. He retired Epstein on a bouncer to second base, Sal Bando on a lina drive to Morgan and Hendrick on chop to first base to give Cincinnati its first victory.

For Billingham, it became a night to remember after a season of mixed success. He pitched 36 times this year, won 12 games and lost 12 for a team that was winning 36 more games than it was losing.

"The Beach at Villerville, 1908." by Jacques Henri Lartigue.

On Film

He Put

A Century

By David Shirey NEW YORK (IET).—"I have taken pictures for no one but myself," says the French photographer Jacques Henri Larligue. "Like Proust, I couldn't let my life slip by without having a record of it."

The photographs by Lartigue on view at two New York galleries are as private and unguardedly revealing as a diary.

They are an intimate souvenir of Lartigue's life, a close-up portrait of his experiences and of his family and friends, his wives and mistresses. As such, they are warm and hudelightful humor and nostalgia. But the pictures are also one man's vision of the 20th century-a reflection of its mores, fashions and growth. His swift and perceptive eye has let little slip by. An unflappable and ubiquitous observer, he has been clicking away ever since his father gave him his first camera in 1902, a lumbering contraption with accordion-like folds and an un-

man. And they are suffused with more than a touch of

"I was 6 and very small," recalls the 76-year-old Frenchman who has a Jean Coctean wispiness. "I had to climb on

gainly tripod.

Lartigue a stool to take my first pictures of Maman and Papa." In his lifetime Mr. Lartigue has snapped more than 200,000 photographs and has preserved most of them in his Paris home, which, he says, because of the numerous stacks and files, resembles a "branch of the Bibliothèque Nationale."
Approximately 100 selected works, primarily from the early years of the century, are on display at the Witkin and the Neikrug Galleries.

One can see, among other things, seplas and black and whites of his bearded papa and pompadoured maman, his sober-faced brother Zissou attempting to fly with an umbrella, a pretty and forlorn cousin in a drenched dress at the beach 'I was the youngest in my family," Mr. Lartigue said in an interview in French. "I couldn't join in with the others because of my age. I was an outsider and my camera became my friend and magical plaything and we watched the others

Later on, he caught the piquant elfishness of his first wife, Bibi, and the conrubine voluptuousness of a Romanian prostitute whose looks suggest a cross between a cabaret discuse and a high priestess.

Like a precocious voyeur, he followed and photographed the stylish ladies of the Belle Enoque who strolled in the dols de Boulogne in their bouncy, flowery hats and fancy dresses. The men are seen there and at the racetrack in their jaunty white suits, top boots, pointed moustaches; with hair pasted and parted rezor-sharp down the middle. Then there are spectacular pictures of the first automobile racers, toboggans on wheels, bobs with a sail, sledges with helicopter propellers and the first gawky flying machines.

Lartigue says that, although he has taken pictures all his life, his work became known only 10 years ago through publication in Life magazine. This was followed by a Museum of Modern Art exhibition. He has earned his living primarily as a figurative painter working in a Bonnard style. Now he is about to take a trip through America and says that he has film for 7,000 pictures. "It'll be an unforgettable trip," he notes.

Fictional Norman Stirs the Author's

Naked and The Dead," has lodged a protest against the publication of a novel that depicts an intelboy." lectual named Norman Mailer being shot while he is partly naked. Mailer made the complaint in his own words-many words during a meeting with Alan Leichuk, the novel's author, publishing industry sources disclosed, "It was wild, really wild," said one witness to the meeting, which took place on Sept. 29 at the New York office of Leichuk's Ir wyer, "There was shouling and screaming and yelling." At issue was a relatively brief passage in Leichuk's work, "Amer-ican Mischief," As printed in galley proofs the scene depicts the murder of the fictional Mailer by a fictional young radical, Lenny Pincus. The fictional Mailer is shot in the buttocks while his trousers are down.

One supporter of Leichuk, who attended the meeting but who did not want to be identified, reported that Maller began by pounding the conference table and shouting. "By the time this is over, Leichuk, you ain't going to be nothin' but a hank of hair and some fillings." He said Mailer observed that "I wouldn't die with my pants down."

Mailer's attorney, Charles Rembar, who was also present, dr-nied that his client had used exactly these words. Rembar re-ported that Leichuk's voice had reached a pitch and a decibel level that in the nontechnical sense people would call hysteri-cal." Questioned later, Leichuk said: "I would not like either the meeting or the scene (in the novel) blown out of proportion. The scene is four pages out of 500; and it obviously plays a small part in the whole texture of the book." Lelchuk did not divulge specifically if he had made any changes in the book as a result of the meeting, but be observed "I may have made small changes in relation to that scene and several other scenes, but they were all small changes and nothing in the way of a basic change."

The 36-year-old-wife of Sen. Strom Thurmond 69. a South Carolina Republican, gave birth Wednesday to the couple's second child, an eight-pound, three-ounce boy, in Greenwood, S. C. An aide for the 69-year-old senator said both mother and child were doing fine. "I'm sitting on top of the
